

OUTAGE SUPPORT - INCLUDING CONTAINMENT WORK

Our work is backed by 125 years of OEM expertise in heavy industry.

There is no substitute for experience, and with nearly a half century of nuclear crane experience, Morris Material Handling is the most seasoned supplier in the industry. With over 125 years of material handling experience and regional offices across the continent, we are staffed and equipped to provide the high level of service and responsiveness you expect 365 days a year.

Our seasoned nuclear crane engineers and project managers are dedicated to ensuring that your project is handled properly and efficiently. They routinely complete complex engineering analyses associated with nuclear applications. They understand that working in nuclear containment is very demanding and requires strict adherence to regulatory and site specific requirements. You can feel confident knowing that our P&H certified technicians frequently work in containment and that many of them are fully trained and badged for immediate access at many nuclear generating stations.
